The question has been asked us, if head stones can be removed from the government for Union soldiers whose graves are unmarked. In reply we would state that blank forms of application will be furnished to Posts of the Grand Army in this country, or to persons individually interested, by application to U. S. Brockway, Secretary of Soldiers' Union.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Exchange Hotel is already one of the best furnished and elegantly finished houses in the state, improvements are constantly being made. The upper halls and rooms have recently been newly papered and painted, and other additions made to its many conveniences. This house is one that our citizens may well take pride in, as it is the surprise of all who are its guests to find a hotel so complete in its appointments and arrangements in a town of this size.
